

Pin the tail on the donkey

Pin the tail on the donkey, was played by many of the folk museum's volunteers and their families when they were young.

The volunteers introduced it to the Limitless Learning children, who thought it was great fun!

Pin the Tail on the Donkey, was invented a long time ago, as a party game.

- there's a big picture of a donkey without a tail
- the players shut their eyes (or wear a blindfold)
- the player spins around a few times to make them a bit dizzy
- then they try to pin a paper tail as close as possible to where the donkey's tail should be

It's so much fun to play and watch. Everyone laughs when the tail ends up in funny places like the donkey's nose or ear!

The winner is the person who puts the tail closest to the correct spot.
